

Christian Relationship Checklist

A Christian has many relationships. God has given us instructions regarding these various relationships. The following checklist can be used to (1) identify sins and behavior that needs to be corrected, (2) identify ways you can improve, and (3) provide a reference for future situations you may find yourself in. If, through studying the scriptures, you find areas where you have sinned, confess your sins to God. You may also need to ask forgiveness from the person you've offended. In some cases, restitution may be required to restore a loss you have caused another. Also, pray about and try to think of new and better ways of fulfilling the instructions. Purpose to follow each of the commands and/or instructions as best you can in every relationship through the power of the Holy Spirit. As you submit to God in these relationships, you will be blessed, others will be blessed, and God will be honored. The following list is by no means exhaustive. As you read the scriptures, you can expand it.
